Judas betrayal of Jesus

The betrayal of Jesus by Judas Iscariot is one of the most well-known events in the Bible.

Judas, one of Jesus' twelve disciples, betrayed Him for thirty pieces of silver, as described in the Gospels. This act led to Jesus' arrest and eventual crucifixion.

Biblical references to this event include:

- Matthew 26:14-16: Judas agrees to betray Jesus for money.

- Mark 14:10-11: Similar account of Judas' betrayal.
- Luke 22:3-6: Satan enters Judas, prompting him to betray Jesus.
- John 13:21-30: Jesus predicts Judas' betrayal during the Last Supper.

The betrayal is often seen as a fulfillment of prophecy, such as in Psalm 41:9, which speaks of being betrayed by a close friend. It also raises deep questions about loyalty, forgiveness, and the human condition.
